

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. CHELTENHAM COLLEGE.

BY

MONIER WILLIAMS, M.A.,
LATE SANSKRIT PROFESSOR AT THE EAST-INDIA COLLEGE.

CHELTENHAM:

TO BE PROCURED AT THE COLLEGE.

1858.

OXFORD:

PRINTED BY JAMES WRIGHT.

ADVERTISEMENT.

ALTHOUGH in compiling the following rudimentary Grammar of the Hindustani language I have followed the plan already pursued at Cheltenham College, and have made exclusive use of English type, I beg to guard myself from the suspicion of intending thereby to encourage a neglect of the Hindustani character. I have endeavoured in the tables already printed for the use of this College to give a full exposition of the Hindustani alphabet; and I cannot too forcibly express my opinion, that, for a scholarlike acquaintance with any Oriental language, a thorough knowledge of the Oriental system of writing is indispens-Long practice, however, is necessary before the able. European eye can become familiar with Oriental letters, and it would be unwise to insist too peremptorily on their use at the early stages of a learner's progress. When he has gained an insight into the grammatical structure of the language, by the aid of Roman type, he may be led gradually to make himself conversant with the native cha-Perhaps a Grammar in which the European and Oriental types are judiciously blended will be found most conducive to a sound knowledge of the language. Of these the best I believe to be that written by Dr. Duncan Forbes.

I am bound to acknowledge that I have consulted that Grammar in simplifying the arrangement of the Hindustānī verb. Nothing can be easier than Hindustani conjugation. when the tenses are grouped in three divisions of three tenses each. To cumber the verb with a number of tenses which are rarely used, and some of which exist more in theory than practice, is to embarrass the beginner need-Any notice of these uncommon tenses in an elementary work should be confined to one verb. therefore exhibited in the following pages under the verb ho-nā alone; but, in order to innovate as little as possible, the examples of nouns and verbs given by the late Captain Gordon in his tables of Urdū inflexions have been preserved, although the arrangement has been altered and For the same reason the names of the tenses simplified. as given by him have been retained between brackets.

One innovation, for which I am responsible, requires explanation. I have thought it desirable to express the imperceptible $(mukhtaf\bar{\imath})$ s s or h at the end of a word by a Roman h. The usual practice in transliteration from Hindūstānī into English is to omit this letter altogether, to denote that its sound is lost in pronunciation. This is doubtless justifiable when the Hindūstānī character is exhibited side by side with the Roman; but in a purely elementary Grammar in which the Roman character is exclusively employed I hold that, to accustom the beginner to perfect accuracy in spelling, every Oriental letter ought to have its corresponding Roman symbol.

If the final h be rejected from the Romanized word merely because unpronounced, the learner, when called upon to transpose that word back again into native letters, might for a similar reason reject it from the Hindustani word. The real fact is that the Romanized word is not an improved method of spelling the Indian word according to European ideas of pronunciation, but a literal subtitute for the Hindūstānī word letter for letter. The same orthography, which requires the retention of the final h, though unpronounced, in the Hindustani word, ought strictly to require its retention in the Romanized substitute. over the principle of rejecting imperceptible letters does not seem to be consistently carried out in all words. Thus in words like khwāb, khwesh, &c., the imperceptible w is invariably retained; and in the Romanizing of such words as wuh and yih the final h, which is hardly, I imagine, more audible than in kih, is never rejected. Again in the case of Sanskrit vocables like pravritti, which are admitted into all Urdū Dictionaries, how is the learner to know that in transposing these back again into Hindustani no final h is to be written, if in those Hindustani words which really end in this letter a corresponding symbol is not given in the Roman type? The practice, however, of discarding the final weak h is so universal that it becomes a question whether a departure from the usual custom would be justifiable in any other than a rudimentary work, intended to habituate the learner to accurate orthography. case the imperceptible h ought to be distinguished from the ordinary letter by some mark of difference: I have therefore indicated it by Roman in contradistinction to Italic type.

With regard to Hindustani syntax a few observations will be found scattered here and there through the present little work; but, in accordance with its elementary character, the learner is referred for fuller information on this subject to other sources, and especially to the valuable chapter at the end of Dr. Forbes' Grammar.

In appending tables of the Arabic derivatives used in Hindūstānī to a mere book of rudiments I may appear to have travelled out of my legitimate province. Nor should I have trenched upon this higher ground, had I been aware of any more elaborate Grammar to which the advanced scholar might have been referred for clear and concise information on this subject. The utility of these tables, as an aid to the memory in the acquisition of a highly composite language, abounding in Arabic and Persian even more than in Sanskrit derivatives, can hardly be exaggerated. My reasons for commending them to the attention of the learner who is desirous of something more than a mere superficial knowledge of the language, will be found stated at rule 133.

I have only to add that I am indebted to Mr. Cotton Mather, Assistant Professor of Hindūstānī at this College, for aiding me in the revision of the proof sheets of the following pages, and for many useful suggestions.

How to distinguish masculine nouns.

- 3. Nouns ending in ah or ā or any other letter besides those above mentioned are generally masculine; as, back-chah 'a child,' bandah 'a slave,' daryā 'a river,' ghar 'a house,' tāj 'a crown.'
- a. Except feminine Sanskrit nouns ending in ā, as kirpā 'favour,' Italic' pājā 'worship;' and feminine Arabic nouns in ā, as balā 'evil,' khatā like It 'fault,' intihā 'end:' see r. 16.

DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

4. The cases are expressed by certain prepositions, more properly called postpositions; as,

For the Gen. either $k\bar{a}$ or ke or $k\bar{i}$ 'of.'

- Dat. and Ac. ko (rarely ke ta-īn, see 108 note) 'to.'
- Abl. se 'from,' 'with,' 'than.'
- Loc. men, par, tak, 'in,' 'on,' 'up to.'
- Agent ne 'by.'
- 5. These postpositions are something like the English 'of,' 'from,' 'by,' &c.; only instead of being placed before, they are placed after a noun to form a case: thus—

FIRST DECLENSION. MASCULINE NOUNS.

Like mard 'a man.'

N. mard 'man.'

G. mard kā or-ke or-kī'man of.'

STNGTT.AR

D. mard ko 'man to.'

Ac. mard ko (or mard) 'man.'

Ab. mard se 'man from.'

L. mard men 'man in.'

Ag. mard ne 'man by.'

V. ai mard 'O man.'

PLURAL.

N. mard 'men.'

G. mardon kā or-ke or-kī

D. mardon ko.

Ac. mardon ko (or mard).

Ab. mardon se.

L. mardon men.

Ag. mardon ne.

V. ai mardo.

6. Observe—In the above noun, the nominative singular mard remains unchanged not only throughout the singular but in the nominative plural also. In the other cases of the plural on is added to mard, scept in the vocative, where only o is added.

- a. Note—A few masculine nouns ending in \bar{a} and $\bar{\imath}$ may be declined like mard; as, $r\bar{a}j\bar{a}$ 'a king,' $\underline{K}hud\bar{a}$ 'God,' $k\bar{a}z\bar{\imath}$ 'a judge:' see r. 10.
- 7. Observe—In this, and in all other Hindustani nouns, the genitive is formed in three ways; viz. 1st with kā, 2d with ke, 3d with kī. (NB. In Persian phrases, however, the genitive is formed by the izāfat, see Alphabet under Isāfat.)

1st. $K\bar{a}$ is used when the governing noun is masculine, and in the nominative singular.

2d. Ke, when the governing noun is masculine, but not in the nominative singular.

Also when the governing word is a masculine substantive in an oblique case used adverbially (some postposition being generally understood).

3d. $K\bar{\imath}$, when the governing noun is feminine, whatever its case. Also when the governing word is a feminine substantive in an oblique case used adverbially.

Ex.gr. 1st. mard kā beţā [or beţā mard kā] 'the son of the man.'

2d. mard ke bete [or bete mard ke] 'the sons of the man;' mard ke bete se [or bete se mard ke] 'from the son of the man;' mard ke āge* [or āge mard ke] 'in front of the man.'

3d. mard kī beṭī [or beṭī mard kī] 'the daughter of the man;' mard kī beṭī se [or beṭī se mard kī] 'from the daughter of the man;' shahr kī ṭaraṭ towards (in the direction of) the city.'

Like betä 'a son,' bandah 'a slave.'

8. N.B. This is the only declension which changes the final letter of the noun.

Here men is probably understood; mard ke äge men.

Masculine nouns ending in \bar{a} or ah change those terminations to e in the oblique cases* singular and in the nominative plural, and to on in the other cases of the かたるこうをあるから plural: thus— N. betā 'a son.' N. bete 'sons.' G. bete $k\bar{a}$, -ke, - $k\bar{i}$, 'of a son.' G. beton kā, -ke, -kī. D. bete ko 'to a son.' D. beton-ko. Ac. bete ko (or beta) 'a son.' Ac. beton ko (or bete). Ab. bete se 'from a son.' Ab. beton se. L. bete men 'in a son.' L. beton men. Ag. bete ne 'by a son.' Ag. beton ne. V. ai bete 'O son.' V. ai beto. 9. Similarly, bandah 'a slave;' gen. sing. bande kā, -ke, -kī; nom. pl. bande; gen. bandon kā, -ke, -kī, &c. Words ending in yah generally change yah into e instead of into ye; thus kirāyah 'hire' makes kirā-e kā instead of kirāye The word rūpiyah 'a rupee' is pronounced rūpa-e or $ightharpoonup rar{u}pai$ in the N. pl. 10. A few masculine nouns derived from the Sanskrit, Persian, or Arabic, preserve their finals unchanged like mard in the sing, and N. pl. In the other cases they add on to the final: thus, raja 'a king; N. rājā; G. rājā kā, -ke, -kī; N. pl. rājā; G. rājāon kā, -ke, -kī, &c. Similarly, Khudā 'God,' gadā 'a beggar,' dunyā 'the world,' dānā 'a sage,' pitā 'a father,' daryā 'a river,' umarā 'nobles,' mullā 'a teacher,' lālā 'a master,' bābā 'a father.' a. Observe— \tilde{a} and ah as the finals of feminine nouns also remain unchanged in the sing., but in the N. pl. add en; see rr. 16, 17. II. A few masculine nouns ending in an are treated as if ending in ā, the n being optionally rejected; thus baniyān 'a shopkeeper' makes in the gen. case either baniyei kā or baniye-kā. 12. Pānw 'a foot,' gānw 'a village,' and nānw 'a name,' of the first declension of masculines, change nw into on in the oblique cases plural; and the plural termination on is then dispensed with. Y form pā-on, gā-on, nā-on, exists also for the singular and nominative t plural. * The oblique cases are all the cases except the nominative. I cannot get over the opinion that the final or being inaudible (see tree 2) and in fact only a vehicle in writing in the Tersian character.

In The final a, ought to be omitted bether the troman character is used

THIRD DECLENSION. FEMININE NOUNS. Like betī 'a daughter.'

13. Feminine nouns ending in \tilde{i} , and indeed all other feminine nouns, are declined like mard of the first declension, excepting in the nom. pl., where those in \tilde{i} add $\tilde{a}\tilde{n}$ (before which, \tilde{i} is optionally changed to iy), and those ending in any other letter add $e\tilde{n}$: see rr. 15, 16.

N. bețī 'a daughter.'

G. bet \bar{i} $k\bar{a}$, -ke, - $k\bar{i}$, 'of a —.'

D. betī ko 'to a daughter.'

Ac. beţī ko [or beţī]'a daughter.'

Ab. betī se 'from a daughter.'

L. betī men 'in a daughter.'

Ag. betī ne 'by a daughter.'

V. ai betī 'O daughter.'

N. beţī-ān or beţiy-ān.

G. beţī-on, kā, -ke, -kī.

D. beţī-on ko.

Ac. beţī-on ko [or beţī-ān].

Ab. bețī-on se.

L. beţī-on men.

Ag. betī-on ne.

V. ai betī-o.

14. Jorū 'a wife,' like bețī, makes jorū-ān or joruw-ān in N. pl.

15. FOURTH DECLENSION. FEMININE NOUNS.

Like bāt 'a word,' balā 'evil.'

N. bat 'a word.'

G. $b\bar{a}t k\bar{a}$, -ke, - $k\bar{\imath}$, 'of a word.'

D. bāt ko 'to a word.'

Ac. bāt ko [or bāt] 'a word.'

Ab. bāt se 'from a word.'

L. bāt men 'in a word.'

Ag. bāt ne 'by a word.'

V. ai bāt 'O word.'

N. bāt-en.

G. bāton kā, -ke, -kī.

D. bāton ko.

Ac. bāton ko [or bāt-en].

Ab. bāton se.

L. bāton men.

Ag. bāton ne.

V. ai bāto.

16. Like $b\bar{a}t$ are declined feminine nouns in \bar{a} ; as, $bal\bar{a}$ 'evil,' N. pl. $bal\bar{a}\text{-}e\bar{n}$; and all other feminine nouns excepting those of the third declension. $G\bar{a}\text{-}e\bar{n}$ i. a cow' makes $g\bar{a}\text{-}e\bar{n}$ in the nom. pl.; and resembles $g\bar{a}\bar{n}w$ 'a village' in making $g\bar{a}\text{-}o\bar{n}$ in the oblique pl.

a. A few feminine nouns in iyā form their nom. pl. by adding instead of ei: thus, thiliyā 'a waterpot;' nom. pl. thiliyai.

17. Observe—Nouns of two short syllables, the latter of which encloses a short \check{a} , drop the \check{a} in the plural; as, jagah f. 'a place,' N. pl. jaghen: similarly, baras m. 'a year' makes barson $k\bar{a}$.

18. Observe—The Persian and Arabic form of the genitive are occasionally used in Hindūstānī; see Hindūstānī alphabet, under the terms Izāfit and Waşla.

a. Note—Persian and Arabic nouns sometimes adopt the Persian plur. termination ān for animate objects, and hā or (Arabic) āt or jāt for inanimate; as, sākī-ān 'cup-bearers,' sālhā 'years,' sūbajāt 'provinces.' These terminations may occur in phrases where the izāfat is used, as mādar-i-brāhmanān for mā brāhmanon kī. B. o B. p. 180. Sometimes ān is used for inanimate objects; as, chirāghān 'lamps.'

ADJECTIVES.

- 19. Adjectives ending in \bar{a} change this termination to e or \bar{i} , according to the number, gender, or case of the substantive they qualify; the rule being the same as for $k\bar{a}$, ke, $k\bar{i}$ (see rule 7).
- 20. Some adjectives, however, ending in \bar{a} of Arabic and Persian origin remain unchanged; as, $d\bar{a}n\bar{a}$ 'wise.'
- 21. All other adjectives remain unchanged; as, pāk mard 'a pure man,' pāk "aurat 'a pure woman,' ziyādah raunak 'excessive beauty.'
- 22. The particle $s\bar{a}$, used to express resemblance, is changeable (like adjectives ending in \bar{a}) to se and $s\bar{\imath}$, according to the rule for $k\bar{a}$, ke, $k\bar{\imath}$ (rule 7).
- a. Observe— $S\bar{a}$ may sometimes govern the genitive case, especially when it alludes to one out of many; $k\bar{a}$ $s\bar{a}$ ('like that of') will then follow the rule for the changes of $s\bar{a}$.
- 23. The ordinals up to fourth change their final \bar{a} according to the same rule. The termination $\bar{a}i$, which marks the remaining ordinals, is changeable to ei and ii on the same principle.
- Adjectives generally precede their substantives, excepting in Persian phrases, where the izāfat is used; see Alphabet, under Izāfat.
- a. Adjectives, when they precede their substantives, do not take the plural terminations ān, en, on: thus, gorī larkī-ān 'fair girls,' (not gorī-ān larkī-ān); khūb kitāben 'fine books,' (not khūben kitāben); gore larkon ne 'by fair boys,' (not goron larkon ne).
- b. In poetry the adjective may sometimes come last, in which case it may assume the plural terminations; as, rāten bhārī-ān 'tedious nights.'

sel Page 4

25. The following table exemplifies the preceding rules:

ā	e] ī
gorā laṛkā ' a fair boy.'	gore larke ko 'to a fair boy.'	gorî larkî 'a fair girl.'
·	gore larke 'fair boys.'	gorī larkī-āri 'fair girls.'
	gore laykon kā 'of fair boys.'	gorī laṛkī-oṅ kā ' of fair girls.'
barā mard 'a great man.'	bare mard kā 'of a great man.'	barī kitāb kā 'of a large book.'
	bare mard 'great men.'	barī kitābei 'large books.'
	bare mardoù par 'on great men.'	barī kitābon men 'in large books.'
khūb larkā 'a fine boy.'	khūb larke 'fine boys.'	khūb larkī 'a fine girl.'
kālā sā ghorā 'a blackish horse.'	kāle se ghore par 'on a blackish horse.'	kālī sī ghoŗiyāsi 'blackish mares.'
dānā mard 'a wise man.'
dānā mard 'wise men.'
dānā mard ko 'to a wise man.'
uskā sā jism 'a body like that of his.'	uske se jism ko 'to a body like that of his.'	Hātim kī sī sa kh āwat 'liberality like that of Ḥātim.'
pahlā mard 'the first man.'	duere mard ko	tisri randi 'the third woman.'
pānchwān larkā 'the fifth boy.'	chhatwen larke ko 'to the sixth boy.'	sātwin larkī 'the seventh girl.'

26. Observe—If an adjective qualifies two or more nouns of the masculine and feminine gender, it is used in the masc. form; but if the nouns are the names of inanimate things, it generally agrees with that to which it stands nearest; as, kapre bāsan aur kitābei bahut achchhī hain, 'the clothes, plates, and books, are very good.' See Forbes' Grammar.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

27. The termination of adjectives undergoes no change to express comparison. All that is required is to put the noun substantive or pronoun in the ablative case: thus, us se achchhā 'better than that,' sulh jang se achchhā hai 'peace is better than war,' wuh sultān se bara hai 'he is greater than a king.'

Observe—Here the adjective generally follows its substantive.

- a. Sometimes the adverbs ziyādah and aur (meaning 'more') are joined to the adjective, as in English.
- Sometimes the adjective is doubled; as, achchhā achchhā 'very good.'
- 28. The superlative degree may be expressed by sab se; as, sab se barā 'greatest of all' ('than all greater').
- 29. The Persian terminations tar and tarin and the Arabic prefix a are occasionally used; as, khūb-tar or aḥsan 'more beautiful,' khūb-tarīn or aḥsan 'most beautiful.' Similarly, bihtar, bihtarīn, 'better,' 'best.'

31. Observe, that the first and second pronouns may add either -rā or -re or -rī for their Gen. sing., and either -ārā or -āre or -ārī for their Gen. plur., according to the rule for the use of $-k\bar{a}$, -ke, $-k\bar{c}$, in the declension of nouns* (see rule 7). In the Dat. and Ac. they may add either e or ko for the sing., and either $e\bar{n}$ or ko or $o\bar{n}$ -ko for the plural. Sometimes h is added to the pronominal base in the plural before the postpositions and before $o\bar{n}$. When $o\bar{n}$ is used, the plural pronoun, which may otherwise stand for the singular, then generally has a plural meaning.

- 32. Observe also, that in the singular the agent adds no to the nominative forms main and tū, and not to the oblique forms mujh and tujh, unless the no be separated from the pronoun by an intermediate word, as main no 'by me,' but mujh fakīr no 'by me the fakīr.'
- 33. The relative pronoun jo is sometimes repeated or compounded: thus, jo jo 'whoever,' 'whatsoever;' jo so (Gen. jis tis kā) 'whosoever,' &c.; jo ko-ī (Gen. jis-kisī-kā, -ke, -kī) 'whosoever,' &c.; jo kuchh 'whatsoever.'
- 34. The relative generally stands in the former part of a sentence, and the correlative in the latter; as, jo bad kām karegā so sazā pāwegā 'who does evil he will suffer.' Observe, that wuh as well as so is often used as a correlative to jo.
- 35. In negative sentences the interrogative is substituted for the relative; as, wuh kaun hai ham nahin jänte 'we know not who he is.'
- 36. The interrogative may be compounded thus, aur kaun 'who else?' aur kyā 'what else?' kaun sā 'what like +?' $Ky\bar{a}$ is sometimes used as a conjunction, meaning 'whether.'
- 37. The reflexive pronoun $\bar{a}p$ (Gen. $apn\bar{a}$, -ne, -n \bar{i}), meaning 'my,' 'thy,' 'his,' 'her,' 'our,' 'your,' 'their,' is always substituted for the possessive cases of the pronouns when they refer to the same person as the nominative or agent,

^{*} The genitive case of the first and second pronouns may be formed with $k\bar{a}$, if the pronominal base be separated from its post-position by an intervening word. The oblique forms mujh and tujh are then used; thus, mujh $badba\underline{k}ht$ - $k\bar{a}$ 'of me ill-fated.'

⁺ Sā is used with the oblique form of the first and second personal pronouns; thus, mujh sā 'like me,' tujh sā 'like you.'

as usne apnā kām kiyā 'he did his own work,' but usne unkā kām kiyā 'he did their work.'

- 38. Sab 'all' may take the termination hon when it stands by itself (as sabhon ne 'by all'), but when used with a substantive it is indeclinable.
- 39. Some useful adjectives in ā (changeable to e and ī by rule 19), expressive of similitude and quantity, are formed from the pronouns yih, wuh, kaun, jaun, and taun, as follows: aisā 'this-like,' 'suchlike,' 'such;' itnā 'this much,' 'so many' (itne men 'in the meanwhile'); waisā 'that-like,' 'such;' utnā 'that much;' kaisā 'what-like?' 'in what manner?' 'how?' kitnā 'how many?' jaisā 'which-like,' in the manner which,' 'as;' jitnā 'as many;' taisā 'such-like,' 'so;' titnā 'so many.'
- 40. The following words have a pronominal signification: aur 'other,' 'more;' düsrā 'another;' donon 'both;' ka-ī 'some;' ka-ī ek 'several;' har 'every.'

VERBS.

41. AUXILIARY TENSES.

(Anomalous formations derived from ho-nā 'to be,' see r. 64.)

Present.

main hūn	'I am.'	١	ham hain	' we are.'
trī hai	'thou art.'	l	tum ho	'you are.'
wuh hai	'he,' 'she,' or 'it is.'		we hain	'they are.

Past.

main tha 'I was.'	ham the	'we were.'
		'you were.'
wuh thā 'he' or 'it was.'	we the	'they were.'
Fem. main thī, &c.	Fem.	ham thīn, &c.

- N.B. The above tenses are also used absolutely to denote mere existence.
- 42. Observe, that as a general rule throughout the verbs, when the masculine singular ends in \bar{a} , the masculine plural ends in e, the feminine singular in $\bar{\imath}$, and the feminine plural in $\bar{\imath}$ or sometimes $iy\bar{a}\dot{n}$ or $\bar{\imath}$ - $\bar{a}\dot{n}$.
- 43. The infinitive or verbal noun ends in $n\bar{a}$; as, $bol-n\bar{a}$ 'to speak.' This $n\bar{a}$ is changeable to ne and $n\bar{\imath}$, like sub-stantives in \bar{a} of the second declension, and is declined with the postpositions $k\bar{a}$, ke, $k\bar{\imath}$, ko &c., like other nouns. It is also changeable to $n\bar{\imath}$ for the singular, and $n\bar{\imath}n$ or $niy\bar{a}n$ or $n\bar{\imath}-\bar{a}n$ for the plural, to agree with feminine nouns.

44. The root (which also stands for the 2d sing. imperative) is formed by rejecting the nā of the infinitive; as, bol.

45. The present participle is formed by adding $t\bar{a}$ to the root; as, bol- $t\bar{a}$ 'speaking.'

[N. B. This $t\bar{a}$ is only used for the masc. sing. It is changeable to te for the masc. plural, to $t\bar{i}$ for the fem. sing., and to $t\bar{i}$ or $t\bar{i}$ or $t\bar{i}$ or $t\bar{i}$ for the fem. plural.]

46. The past participle is formed by adding \bar{a} to the root; as, $bol-\bar{a}$ 'spoken.'

[N. B. This \bar{a} is only used for the masc. sing. It is changeable to e for the masc. plural, to $\bar{\imath}$ for the fem. sing., and to $\bar{\imath}\hat{\imath}$ or $\bar{\imath}$ - $\bar{a}\hat{\imath}$ for the fem. plural.]

47 A. Three tenses come from the root, viz. the Aorist, Future, and Imperative (with its respectful form).

[48. These are the only tenses which take terminations, properly so called; the tenses under B. and C. being formed with the participles and auxiliaries. The terminations are,

For the Aorist, $\bar{u}\dot{n}$, e, e; en, o, en.

- Future masc. ūngā, egā, egā; enge, oge, enge.

— Future fem. ungī, egī, egī; engīn, ogīn, engīn, or engiyān &c.

— Imperative, ūn, root, e; en, o, en.

— Respectful imp. iye or iyegā, pl. iyo. (N. B. iyo is more imperative than iye. A form iyen occurs for the 1st and 3d plur.; thus, farmā-iyen 'they should be pleased to command.' B. o B. p. 122.)]

B. Three common tenses come from the present participle, viz. the Indefinite, the Present, and the Imperfect.

.C. Three from the past participle, viz. the Past, the Perfect, and the Pluperfect.

Six other uncommon tenses are given at r. 65.

CONJUGATION.

TRANSITIVE OR ACTIVE VERBS.

49. Transitive verbs, if the root end in a consonant, are conjugated like mār-nā 'to strike;' and if the root end in a vowel, like bulā-nā 'to call.'

50. Observe the peculiarity which distinguishes them from intransitives at r. 58;—that in the past tenses, formed by the past participle (see C. p. 17), a kind of passive construction is required; that is to say, the nominative is changed into an agent with ne, and the object of the verb then becomes the nominative, the past participle agreeing with it in gender and number*.

TRANSITIVES ENDING IN CONSONANTS.

Model, mār.

Infinitive and verbal noun, mār-nā 'to strike,' mārne kā, -ke, -kī, 'of striking,' &c.

- A. Root and 2d sing. imperative, 'strike thou,' mar.
- B. Present participle, 'striking,' mār-tā, f. mār-tī, Pl. mār-te, f. mār-tī.
- C. Past participle, 'struck,' mār-ā, f. mār-ī, Pl. mār-e, f. mār-īi.

A. Tenses from the root.

52.

1. Aorist (or Potential).

[Add to the root the terminations un, e, e; en, o, en.]

main mār-ūn 'I may strike.' | ham mār-en 'we may strike.'
tū mār-e
tum mār-o
tum mār-ei
tum mār-ei

^{*} Sometimes, however, the object takes ko, in which case the past participle remains unchanged, being used as it were impersonally; thus, larke ne larki mārī 'by the boy the girl was beaten,' or larke ne larki ko mārā 'there was a beating by the boy to the girl.'

2. Future.

[Add to the last $g\bar{a}$ for the masc. and $g\bar{i}$ for the fem. sing., $g\bar{e}$ for the masc. and $g\bar{i}\dot{n}$ or $giy\bar{a}\dot{n}$ for the fem. plural.]

f. main $m\bar{a}r$ - $\bar{u}n$ - $g\bar{a}$ $(-g\bar{\imath})$ 'I will strike.' ham $m\bar{a}r$ -en-ge $(-g\bar{\imath}n)$ tu $m\bar{a}r$ -e- $g\bar{a}$ $(-g\bar{\imath})$ vuh $m\bar{a}r$ -e- $g\bar{a}$ $(-g\bar{\imath})$ vue $m\bar{a}r$ -e-ge $(-g\bar{\imath}n)$

3. Imperative.

[The same as 1, except in 2d sing., where the root stands alone.]

main mār-ūn 'let me strike.' ham mār-en 'let us strike.'

tū mār tum mār-o

wuh mār-e we mār-en

Respectful imperative, sing. mār-iye or mār-iyegā, pl. mār-iyo.

- 53. B. Tenses from the present participle.
- r. Indefinite (or Present Indefinite or Conditional), 'I strike or would strike;' '(if) I had struck.'

f.
main mār-tā (-tī)
tū mār-tā (-tī)
wuh mār-tā (-tī)
we mār-te (-tīn)

2. Present (or Present Present), 'I strike or am striking.'

f.
f.
main mār-tā hūn (-tī hūn)
tū mār-tā hai (-tī hai)
tum mār-te ho (-tī ho)

wuh mār-tā hai (-tī hai)

we mār-te hain (-tī hain)

3. Imperfect (or Present Past), 'I was striking.'

f.

main mār-tā thā (-tī thī)

tū mār-tā thā (-tī thī)

wuh mār-tā thā (-tī thī)

wuh mār-tē the (-tī thīn)

we mār-te the (-tī thīn)

54. C. Tenses from the past participle.

١

1. Past (or Past Indefinite).

Object in sing. masc., 'I struck (the boy),' or 'by me (the boy) was struck.'

main ne (laṛkā) mār-ā | ham ne (laṛkā) mār-ā tū ne (laṛkā) mār-ā | tum ne (laṛkā) mār-ā us ne (laṛkā) mār-ā | un ne (laṛkā) mār-ā

Object in sing. fem., 'I struck (the girl),' or 'by me (the girl) was struck.'

main ne (laṛkī) mār-ī * &c. | ham ne (laṛkī) mār-ī * &c.

Object in plur. masc., 'I struck (the boys),' or 'by me (the boys) were struck.'

main-ne (laṛke) mār-e * &c. | ham ne (laṛke) mār-e * &c.

Object in plur. fem., 'I struck (the girls),' or 'by me (the girls) were struck.'

main ne (laṛkiyān) mār-īn* or | ham ne (laṛkiyān) mār-īn*
mār-iyān

2. Perfect (or Past Present).

[Same as the last, with the auxiliary hai at the end, or with hain when the object is plural.]

Object in sing. masc., 'I have struck (the boy),' or 'by me (the boy) has been struck.'

main ne (laṛkā) mār-ā ha	ham ne (lāṛkā) mār-ā	hai
tū ne ——	tum ne ———
us ne ——	un ne ——

Object in sing. fem., 'I have struck (the girl),' or 'by me (the girl) has been struck.'

main-ne (laṛkī) mār-ī hai | ham ne (laṛkī) mār-ī hai

^{*} When ko is added to the object, then the past participle remains unchanged; thus, main-ne larki-ko mārā.

Object in plur. masc., 'I have struck (the boys),' or
'by me (the boys) have been struck.'

main-ne (larke) mār-e hair | ham ne (larke) mār-e hair

Object in plur. fem., 'I have struck (the girls),' or
'by me (the girls) have been struck.'

main ne (larkivān) mār-ī* hain | ham ne (larkivān) mār-ī* hain

marn ne (tarkiyan) mar-ı * hain | ham ne (tarkiyan) mar-ı

3. Pluperfect (or Past Past).

[Same as 1, with the auxiliary thā at the end, or with the or thī or thīn, according to the number and gender of the object.]

Object in sing. fem., 'I had struck (the girl),' or 'by me (the girl) had been struck.'
main-ne (larkī) mār-ī thī | ham ne (larkī) mār-ī thī

Object in plur. masc., 'I had struck (the boys),' or 'by me (the boys) had been struck.'

main-ne (laṛke) mār-e the | ham-ne (laṛke) mār-e the Object in plur. fem., 'I had struck (the girls),' or 'by me (the girls) had been struck.'

main ne (laṛkiyān) mār-ī* thīn | ham ne (laṛkiyān) mār-ī* thīn

Conjunctive participle, 'Having struck.'

mār, mār-e, mār-ke, mār-kar, mār-karke, mār-karkor.

^{*} The auxiliary ending in a nasal, it is not usual to add a nasal to the participle, as in the past tense, but mārīn is equally correct.

Participles used adjectively.

mār-tā hū-ā (f. mār-tī hū-ī; Pl. or inflected, mār-te hū-e; f. mār-tī hū-īi) 'striking.'

 $m\bar{a}r$ - \bar{a} $h\bar{u}$ - \bar{a} (f. $m\bar{a}r$ - \bar{i} $h\bar{u}$ - \bar{i} ; Pl. or inflected, $m\bar{a}r$ -e $h\bar{u}$ -e; f. $m\bar{a}r$ - \bar{i} $h\bar{u}$ - \bar{i} \bar{i}) 'stricken.'

Adverbial participle.

mārte-hī 'immediately on striking.'

Noun of agency.

mārne-wālā 'a beater,' 'one who beats.'

Useful transitive verbs conjugated like mār-nā.

khol-nā 'to open.' pakar-nā 'to seize.'

pūchh-nā 'to ssk.' dāl-nā 'to throw.'

rakh-nā 'to place.' dekh-nā 'to see.'

kāṭ-nā 'to cut.' nikāl-nā 'to take out.'

likh-nā 'to write.' chāh-nā 'to desire.'

bhej-nā 'to send.' sun-nā 'to hear.'

55. TRANSITIVE VERBS ENDING IN VOWELS. Model, bulā.

Infinitive and verbal noun, bulā-nā 'to call,' bulā-ne kā, -ke, -kī, 'of calling,' &c.

- A. Root and 2d sing. imperative, 'call thou,' bulā.
- B. Present participle, 'calling,' bulā-tā, f. bulā-tī, Pl. bulā-te, f. bulā-tī.
- C. Past participle, 'called,' bulā-y-ā, f. bulā-ī, Pl. bulā-e, f. bulā-īn.

[Observe—Transitives ending in vowels only differ from those ending in consonants * by requiring the insertion of y before the \bar{a} of the past participle, and the optional insertion of w before the termination e and ei of the acrist, future, and imperative.]

56. N.B. Roots ending in o as well as \bar{a} insert y before \bar{a} of the past participle; thus $dho-n\bar{a}$ 'to wash' becomes $dho-y-\bar{a}$.

^{*} But kar-nā, although ending in a consonant, makes kiyā, irregularly.

INTRANSITIVE OR NEUTER VERBS.

58. Intransitive or neuter verbs, if the root end in a consonant, are conjugated like bol-nā ' to speak; and if the root end in a vowel, like lana 'to bring.'

N. B. These two verbs, though apparently active, must be regarded as neuter from the fact of their not admitting ne in the past tenses. Kah-mā 'to say,' on the other hand, is active, and always requires me.

Conjunctive participle, 'having brought,' lā, lā-e, lā-ke, lā-kar, lā-karke, lā-karkar.

Participles used adjectively; Present, 'bringing,' 13-14 ha-ā (f. 13-15 ha-i; Pl. or inflected, 13-16 hā-e; f. lā-sī hū-in); Past, 'brought,' lā-yā hū-ā (f. lā-ī hū-ī; Pl. or inflected, lā-e hū-e;

Adverbial participle, 'immediately on bringing,' late-ha. Noun of agency, 'a bringer,' lane-wala.

The passive voice is formed by prefixing the past participle (changeable to agree with a plural or PASSIVE VOICE WITH JA-NA 'TO GO.'

jana 'to be beaten:' Aorist or Potential, main mār-ā jā-ūn 'I may be beaten;' Future, main mār-ā feminine nominative) of any active verb to the tenses of the neuter verb ja-na 'to go:' thus, man-a jā-ningā 'I shall be beaten,' unuh mār-ī jā-wegī 'she will be beaten.' The past participle of jā-nā is ga-yā irregularly (f. ga-ī, Pl. ga-c, f. ga-īn). In other respects it is like lā-nā, as follows:--

Root, ja.

Infinitive and verbal noun, jā-nā 'to go, jā-ne kā, -ke, -kī, 'of going.'

A. Root and 2d sing. imperative, 'go thou,' ja.

B. Present participle, 'going,' jā-tā, f. jā-ts, Pl. jā-te, f. jā-tīn.

Participles used adjectively; Present, 'going,' jā-tā hū-ā (f. jā-tī hū-ī; Pl. or inflected, jā-te hū-e; f. jā tā hū-īn); Past, 'gone', ga-yā hū-ā (f. ga-ī hū-ī.; Pl. or inflected, ga-e hū-e.; f. ga-ī hū-īn).

Adverbial participle, 'immediately on going,' jā-te-hī. Noun of agency, 'one who goes,' jane-wala.

Observe—The passive voice, formed with the tenses of jā-nā, placed after a past participle, is generally used when the agent is unknown, or not specifically referred to. When the agent is known and expressed, it will generally be sufficient to use the past participle alone; see past tenses of mār-nā. 63. Observe also, that jānā is sometimes added to the roots of verbs, but does not then necessarily give a passive eignification: thus, ho jānā 'to become;' so jānā 'to go to sleep;' mar jānā 'to die;' rah jānā 'to stop;' sựh jānā to rise up; dar jā-nā 'to fear; dab jā-nā 'to be drowned; ghabrā jā-nā 'to be sgitated."

The past participle of this verb is had a irregularly (f. had, Pl. hade, f. haden). It resembles roots ending in a in allowing w to be optionally inserted before the e and e^i of the acrist, future, and imperative; but when w is not inserted, it may optionally, by a rule peculiar to roots in o, drop the a and e of the terminations of these tenses (leaving the root ho either to combine with the remaining a or to stand alone), excepting in the 1st sing. of the Conjugation of the neuter and auxiliary verb ho-nā 'to be or to become.' future, where it rather drops the o of the root, and retains the u of unigu. In the respectful imperative j is anomalously inserted before iye.

Infinitive and verbal noun, ho-nā 'to be,' ho-ne kā, -ke, -kī, 'of being.' B. Present participle, 'being,' ho-tā, f. ho-fī, Pl. ho-te, f. ho-fīni. A. Root and 2d sing. imperative, ' be thou,' ho.

65. Observe here, that the aorist, future, and indefinite of hond are occasionally, but rarely, joined as auxiliaries to the present and past participles of any verb. This adds six tenses to the nine already specified as belonging to all verbs; but as these tenses are rarely met with, it will be sufficient to indicate them under bol-nā, as follows: --

Three additional tenses from the present participle.

- tū bol-tā ho-(w)e or ho, &c. 1. Present aorist, 'I may be speaking,' main bol-tā ho-ūn or hon
 - tù bol-tā ho-(w)egā or ho-gā. 2. Present future, 'I shall be speaking,' main bol-tā ho-ūn-gā or hūngā
 - tū bol-tā ho-tā, &c. 3. Present conditional, ' had I been speaking,' main bol-tā ho-tā

Three additional tenses from the past participle.

- tù bol-à ho-(w)e or ho, &c. . 1. Past aorist, 'I may have spoken,' main bol-ā ho-ūn or hon
- til bol-ā ho-(w)egā or ho-gā. từ bol-à ho-tā, &c. 2. Past future, 'I shall or will have spoken,' main bol-a ho-unga or hanga 3. Past conditional, 'had I spoken,' main bol-ā hotā
 - Of these six tenses the past future is the one most likely to occur.
- 66. N. B. The verb mar-nā 'to die' is like ho-nā in making mā-ā (f. mā-ī, Pl. maī-a, f. maī-āi) in Hence the tenses from the past participle, as if the root were mu (from Sanskrit mir, Prakrit mu).

past participle will be like those from the past part. of homa. In other respects mar-nā is quite regular, like bol-nā: thus, Aorist, mar-ūi, -e, -e; -ei, -o, -ei: Indefinite, mar-tā, &c.

The past participle of this verb is ki-yd irregularly (f. kt, Pl. kt-c, f. kis). In other respects it is regular, excepting that j is anomalously inserted before the iye of the respectful imperative, as in the case of horad. Conjugation of the active verb kar-na ' to do,' ' to make.'

Infinitive and verbal noun, kar-nā 'to do,' kar-ne kā, -ke, -kī, 'of doing.'

Root, kar.

B. Present participle, 'doing,' kar-tā, f. kar-tā, Pl. kar-tē, f. kar-tēi. A. Root and 2d sing. imperative, 'do thou,' kar.

C. Past participle, 'done,' ki-y-a, f. ki, Pl. ki-e, f. kin.

f. kā hū-ti). Adverbial participle, 'immediately on doing,' kar-te-hī.

Noun of agency, 'a doer,' karne-wala.

68. Observe—Kar-nā is of constant use compounded with nouns, with which its meaning must be made to harmonize: thus, katl kar-nā 'to make killing,' i. e. 'to kill; ma"lūm kar-nā 'to perceive; shādī k. 'to marry; maukūf k. 'to stop;' daryāft k. 'to discover;' kam k. 'to lessen;' shwrü'' k. 'to begin;' chhofā k. 'to diminish.'

69. N.B. It also forms a frequentative compound after a past participle (see r. 92 A); as, jd-yd kon-nd 'to go frequently; dekh-ā k. 'to look frequently;' ki-yā k. 'to do frequently.'

Conjugation of the active verb dena 'to give.'

The past participle is di-yā irregularly (f. di, Pl. di-c, f. dis). The respectful imperative inserts j, like kon-mā

Observe -- When a root ends in e, the letter w may be inserted before the e and es of the sorist, future, and imperative, or the w may be omitted, in which case the final e of the root is also dropped.

Root, de.

Remember that the following verbs are neuter, and therefore not susceptible of m (see r. 58):

lā-nā ' to bring.'

77. Rules for converting neuter verbs into actives or causals, and into double causals.

Observe, in the following lists some active verbs (marked v. a.) are included under the head of Neuters. These are made doubly active or simply causal by the same affixes which are employed to make neuter verbs active.

78. Rule I.—To form an active or causal verb out of a neuter, add long \bar{a} to the root; and to form a double causal, insert w before this long \bar{a} : thus, $pak-n\bar{a}$ 'to be cooked,' 'to ripen;' $pak\bar{a}-n\bar{a}$ 'to cook,' 'to make ripe;' $pakw\bar{a}-n\bar{a}$ 'to cause to cook,' &c.

Other examples.

daur-nā 'to run'	dauṛā-nā
sun-nā 'to hear'	sunā-nā
lag-nā 'to be applied'	lagā-nā	lagrvā-nā

80. N.B. Dissyllabic roots, enclosing a short ă in the last syllable, drop this vowel in forming the active, but not necessarily in the double causal:—

milā-nā

hilā-nā

milwā-nā

hilwā-nā

pakar-nā 'to seize' pakṛā-nā pakaṛwā-nā chamak-nā 'to shine' chamkā-nā samajh-nā (v.a.)'to understand' samjhā-nā sarak-nā 'to move' latak-nā 'to hang'

sarkā-nā laṭkā-nā sarakwā-nā

81. Rule II.—Monosyllabic roots of neuter verbs enclosing long vowels or diphthongs between two consonants generally substitute a short vowel (i being substituted for \bar{a} , \bar{i} , and e; and u for \bar{u} and o) before adding \bar{a} to form actives, and before adding $w\bar{a}$ to form double causals; ex. gr.—

82. Observe—Roots ending in vowels, after shortening the final vowel, according to r. 81, generally add l to the root, which with \bar{a} and $w\bar{a}$ makes $l\bar{a}$ for causals, and $lw\bar{a}$ for double causals:—

pī-nā (v. a.) 'to drink'	pilā-nā	pilwā-nā
jī-nā 'to live'	jilā-nā
de-nā (v. a.) 'to give' †	dilā-nā	dilwā-nā
dho-nā (v. a.) 'to wash'	dhulā-nā	dhulwā-nā
ro-nā 'to weep'	rulā-nā	:
so-nā '' to sleep'	sulā-nā
khā-nā (v. a.) 'to eat'	khilā-nā	khilwā-nā

Observe—Nahā-nā 'to bathe' drops the final vewel of the root before lā, but shortens it before hoā: thus, nahlā-nā 'to cause to bathe,' naha-hvā-nā 'to cause to be bathed.'

Landy mer.

^{*} These two neuter verbs have also the irregular active forms dubo-nā 'to immerse' and bhigo-nā 'to make wet.'

[†] But le-nā 'to take' makes only liwā-nā.

83. Some roots ending in consonants add either \bar{a} or $l\bar{a}$: thus—baith-nā 'to sit' biṭhā-nā * or biṭhlā-nā dekh-nā (v. a.) 'to see' dikhā-nā or dikhlā-nā sikh-nā (v. a.) 'to learn' sikhā-nā or sikhlā-nā

- a. Kah (v. a.) 'to say' makes kahā-nā and kahlā-nā 'to cause to say,' 'to call;' and is peculiar in allowing a neuter or passive sense to its causal: thus, kahā-tā hai or kahlā-tā hai 'it is called.'
- 84. Rule III.—Roots of neuter verbs enclosing short vowels generally lengthen those vowels to form actives or causals; and in consequence of the lengthening of the radical vowel, dispense with the addition of \bar{a} . In the double causal the radical vowel is not lengthened, and $w\bar{a}$ is therefore added:—

REUTER.	ACTIVE OR CAUSAL.	DOUBLE CAUSAL

86.

COMPOUND VERBS.

1st. From the root.

Three kinds are formed from the root by prefixing an unconjugated root to a conjugated verb.

87 A. INTENSIVES.—These are more forcible than a simple verb, and the peculiarity of them is that the unconjugated root conveys the main idea, whilst the conjugated verb at the end generally merges its own sense in that idea, but at the same time gives force to it, like an adverb or emphatic particle in English: thus—uțhā-denā 'to set up.' ā-jānā 'to come suddenly.' ban-ānā 'to be performed,' 'to succeed.' ban-jānā 'to be made,' 'to become.' pī-jānā or pī-lenā 'to drink off or up.' rakh-lenā 'to lay by.' rakh-denā 'to set down.' so-jānā 'to go to sleep.' kāt-dālnā 'to cut off.' kah-denā 'to speak out.' khā-jānā 'to eat up.' kho-denā 'to squander away.' gār-denā 'to bury.' air-parnā 'to fall down.' girā-denā 'to throw down.' le-jānā 'to take or carry away,' 'to convey.' le-ānā 'to bring along.' le-lenā 'to take hold of,' 'to seize.' mār-dālnā 'to kill outright.' nikāl-denā 'to turn out.' ho-jānā or ho-rahnā 'to become.'

88 B. POTENTIALS;—expressing ability to do any thing.

Formed by prefixing an unconjugated root to the verb sak-nā 'to be able:' thusjā-saknā 'to be able to go.'kar-saknā 'to be able to do.'likh-saknā 'to be able to write.'

They may also serve the purpose of a potential mood: thus, main kar sak-tā hūn 'I can do.'

89 C. COMPLETIVES;—expressing completion of an action. Formed by prefixing an unconjugated root to the verb chuk-nā 'to be finished:' thus—pī-chuk-nā 'to have done drinking.'
khā-chuk-nā 'to have done eating.'
main kah-chuk-ā 'I have done saying,' or 'I have already said.'

They may also serve the purpose of a future perfect: thus, jab main likh-chukūngā 'when I shall have done writing,' or 'when I shall have written.'

2dly. From the present participle.

90 A. CONTINUATIVES;—expressing continuous action. Formed by joining a present participle to the verbs $j\bar{a}$ - $n\bar{a}$ 'to go' and rah- $n\bar{a}$ 'to remain.' The present participle must agree with the nominative in gender and number: thus—bol-tā jā-nā 'to go on speaking.'

parh-te jā-te haii 'they go on reading.'

jā-tā rah-nā 'to keep on going.'

rotī jā-tī hai 'she goes on weeping.'

Sometimes another verb of motion may be employed in place of $j\bar{a}$ - $n\bar{a}$; as, sabke $m\bar{a}b\bar{a}p$ mar-te \bar{a} -e hain 'the parents of all have continued and continue to die.'

91 B. STATISTICALS;—expressing motion whilst in the state of doing any thing. Formed by joining an inflected present participle to a verb of motion. The present participle must always be in the inflected state, the postposition men (denoting 'in the state of') being understood: thus—gā-te ātī hai 'she comes singing' (i. e. 'in the state of singing').

ro-te daur-tā hai 'he runs weeping' (i. e. 'in a weeping condition').

Observe—From the above description it is clear that Continuatives and Statisticals are not strictly compound verbs, but rather phrases in which the present participle is used either adjectively or adverbially.

3dly. From the past participle.

92 A. FREQUENTATIVES;—expressing repeated action. Formed by joining an uninflected past participle to the tenses of the verb kar-nā: thus—ā-yā kar-nā 'to come frequently.'

ā-yā jā-yā kar-tā 'he keeps constantly coming and going.' bol-ā kar-tī hai 'she speaks frequently.'

jā-yā kar-nā 'to go frequently.'

ki-yā kar-nā 'to do frequently.'

likh-ā kar-nā 'to write frequently.'

[Observe—In the above and the next class of compound verbs the regular past participles $j\bar{a}$ - $y\bar{a}$ and mar- \bar{a} are preferred to the usual ga- $y\bar{a}$ and $m\bar{u}$ - \bar{a} .]

93 B. Desideratives; — expressing desire or wish. Formed by joining an uninflected past participle to the tenses of the verb chāh-nā 'to wish:' thus—likh-ā chāh-nā 'to wish to write.' mar-ā chāh-ā 'he wished to die.' mar-ā chāh-ī 'she wished to die.'

94. They may often express futurity, or the being about to do any thing: thus, jay-ā chāh-tī hai 'she wishes to go or is about to go,' mar-ā chāh-tī hai 'she is about to die.'

- 95. By using the respectful form chāh-iye the sense of obligation, necessity, or fitness, is obtained: thus, ham-ko jā-yā chāh-iye 'we must go,' tum-ko dekh-ā chāh-iye 'you ought to see,' kit-nā chāh-iye 'how much is necessary?'
- 96. Observe—Passive verbs are formed by prefixing any past participle to the tenses of the verb $j\bar{a}$ - $n\bar{a}$ 'to go,' but the past participle is then changeable to agree with a plural or feminine nominative; see rule 61.
- 97. Note, that a kind of intensive verb (generally implying 'motion') may sometimes be formed from the past participle, agreeing with the nominative: thus, par-ā phir-nā 'to wander about,' bhāg-ā jā-nā 'to flee away,' wuh chāl-ī jā-tī thī 'she was going along.'

COMPOUND VERBS FROM THE INFLECTED INFINITIVE.

- 98. Three kinds of compound verbs are said to come from the inflected infinitive, but these are rather phrases than compound verbs. They are, I. INCEPTIVES, from an infinitive in ne joined to the verb lag-nā 'to begin;' as, sīkh-ne lag-ā 'he began to learn,' kah-ne lag-ā 'she began to speak:' 2. PERMISSIVES, from an infinitive in ne joined to the verb de-nā 'to give (leave);' as, jā-ne de-nā 'to give leave to sleep,' wuh rah-ne de-tā hai 'he gives leave to remain:' 3. Acquisitives, from an infinitive in ne joined to the verb pā-nā 'to get (leave);' as, jā-ne pā-nā 'to get leave to go,' wuh bhāg-ne pā-tā hai 'he gets leave to flee.'
- 99. A kind of compound verb, called a Reiterative, is formed by joining together two verbs of nearly the same sense, and conjugated in the same tenses throughout: thus, dekh-nā bhāl-nā 'to see.' It is usually restricted to the tenses of the participles, and is especially used in the conjunctive participle: thus, we bol-te chāl-te hain 'they converse,' baghair dekhe-bhāle' without having seen,' dho-dhā-kan

'having washed thoroughly,' jal bhun-kar' having become inflamed,' wuh ap-nā hisāb dekh-tā parh-tā hai' he is examining his accounts,' phuslā phanḍlā-kar' having wheedled,' jān-būjh-kar' having known.'

100. From the above description of compound verbs it is clear that they are really only five in number; viz. 1. Intensives, 2. Potentials, 3. Completives, 4. Frequentatives, 5. Desideratives.

NOMINALS.

joining a noun or adjective to a verb (usually kar-nā 'to do' or ho-nā 'to be'): thus, tamām kar-nā 'to complete; kharā ho-nā 'to be erect,' 'to stand;' kharā kar-nā 'to make stand,' 'to stop;' gārī kharī kar or garī ko kharā kar 'stop the carriage;' jam" ho-nā 'to be collected;' shurū" ho-nā 'to commence;' mol le-nā 'to purchase;' ghoṭah mār-nā 'to dive;' ghoṭah khā-nā 'to be dipped;' yād rakh-nā 'to remember.'

102. IDIOMATIC REPETITION OF PARTICIPLES.

baith-e bithā-e (mei) 'sitting still.'
banā banā-yā 'ready made.'
pakā pakā-yā 'ready cooked.'
saj sajā-kar 'having completely prepared.'
kah-ā kah-ī 'altercation.'
mār-ā mār-ī 'scuffling.'

ADVERBS.

Quintuple series derived from the pronouns yit, wuth, kaun, jaun, taun.

103.

		NEAR.	REMOTE.	INTERROGATIVE.	BELATIVE.	CORRELATIVE.
		gih 'this'	souh 'that'	kaun 'who ?'	jaun'who,'which' taun'that same'	taum 'that same'

7. Q	uantity	7. Quantity itta 'this many'	uttā 'that many'	uttā 'that many' kittā 'how many?' jittā 'as many'	jittā ' as many'	tittā ' so many'

104. By adding $\bar{\imath}$, $h\bar{\imath}$, $h\bar{\imath}$, $h\bar{\imath}$, (equivalent to 'very,' 'indeed,' 'the same,') to some of the preceding and to other pronouns, the following more emphatic pronouns and adverbs are formed:—

yih-ī or yah-ī 'this same.' In the oblique case is-ī.

wuh-ī or wahī 'that same.' In the oblique case us-ī;

in pl. un-hīn with hīn:

so, tum-hīn 'you yourself.'

ab-hī 'now,' 'at this very time.'

kab-hī or kab-hū 'ever.'

tab-hī 'at that very time.'

yi-hīn or ya-hīn 'exactly here,' 'in this place,' 'in this way.'

wu-hīn or wa-hīn 'exactly there,' 'in that place,' 'in that way.'

ka-hīn' whereabouts,' 'somewhere.'

aur ka-hīn 'elsewhere.'

yūn-hīn' in this very way, time, place.'

wūn-hīn or won-hīn or wo-hīn or wuhīn or ūnhīn or unhīn 'in that very way, time, place,' 'thereupon,' 'immediately upon that.'

jon-hīn 'as soon as.'

waisā-hī 'that same,' 'in the very same manner.'

kar is added to kyūn: thus, kyūnkar 'how?' 'why?' 'because.'

105. By adding tak 'to' and talak 'until' the following compounds are obtained:—

ab tak or ab talak 'till now.'

kab tak 'till when ?'

jab talak 'while,' 'as long as.'

tab tak or tab talak 'till then.'

yahān tak 'to this degree.'

106. By repeating some of the preceding adverbs useful compounds are formed: thus—jon-ton or jaun taun or jon ton kar 'in some way,' 'by some means.'

kab-hī kab-hī 'sometimes.'
jab kab-hī 'whenever.'
jahān ka-hīn 'wherever.'
waise kā waisā 'such as before.'

107. Other adverbs and adverbial compounds.

achānak 'suddenly.'

ākhir or ākhirko or ākhirash

'at last.'

āj 'to-day.'

 $\bar{a}s~p\bar{a}s$ 'around,' 'on all sides.'

bhī 'also,' 'even.'

par 'but.'

pare 'beyond.'

phir 'again,' 'then.'

to or tau 'then,' 'in that case.'

ziyādah 'more.'

shāyad 'perhaps.'

gharaz 'in short,' 'in a word.'

kabhī nahīn 'never.'

kal 'yesterday,' 'to-morrow.'

kis wāste 'why?'

mat * 'do not.'

nah * 'not.'

nahīn * 'not.'

nahīn-to 'otherwise.'

nāgāh 'suddenly.'

nidan 'at length,' 'in the end.'

nit 'always.'

ware 'on this side.'

hameshah 'always.'

108. Adverbial prepositions governing the genitive with ke.

āge 'before,' 'in front.'

andar 'within.'

upar 'above.'

bā"is 'by reason of.'

bāhir 'without.'

badle 'instead.'

barābar 'equal to.'

ba"d 'after.'

bīch 'in' or 'among.'
pās 'by,' 'near.'

pīchhe 'behind.'

^{*} Mat is used with the imperative only; na or nah with the imperative as well as the other tenses; nahin is never used with the imperative: thus, bhūliyo mat 'don't forget,' aisā na kar 'don't do so.'

ta-īn * 'to.'

khārij 'without.'

dar miyān 'among.'

rū-ba-rū 'in presence of.'

sābab 'by reason of.'

sāth 'with' ('in company').

sāmhne 'in front.'

sivā or sivā-e 'except.'

"ivaz 'instead.'

kābil 'capable.'

karīb 'near.'

tī-e 'on account of.'

lā-ik 'worthy.'

māre 'through' ('in consequence of').

muṭābik 'conformable to.'

muvāfik 'according to.'

mūjib 'by means of.'

nazdīk 'near.'

nīche 'under,' 'beneath.'

hāth 'in the hand of,' 'by the hand of.'

yahān 'at the abode of.'

† taraf (ke or kī) 'towards.'

† ba-madad 'by aid of.'

† mānind 'like.'

109. Adverbial prepositions governing the genitive with ki.

bābat 'concerning.'
ba-daulat 'by means of.'
ba-madad 'by aid of.'
jihat 'on account of.'
khātir 'for the sake of.'

tarah 'in the manner of.'
taraf 'towards.'
ma"rifat 'by' or 'through.'
nisbat 'relative to.'

110. ARABIC AND PERSIAN PREFIXES.

az 'from.'
illā 'except.'
ba, bah, bi, 'in,' 'by.'
bā 'with.'
be 'without.'

bar 'in,' 'on,' 'at.'
barā-e 'on account of.'
bilā 'without.'
dar 'in.'
"alā 'upon.'

^{*} Ke ta-īn is in fact equivalent to ko: thus, behason ke ta-īn rūpai detā 'he gives money to the poor' (= behason ko).

⁺ These three require ke when they precede the substantive, but may take kī when they follow; thus mānind tāre ke 'like a star,' but tāre kī mānind. The others require ke whether they precede or follow; as ba"d ta'ammul ke or ta'ammul ke ba"d 'after reflection,' we ke yahān 'at his abode.' In the 1st and 2d personal pronouns re of course takes the place of ke; as sivā-e mere 'except me.'

"an 'from.'
"ind 'near,' 'with.'
fī 'in.'

la or li 'to,' 'from.'
ma" 'with.'
min 'from.'

ARABIC ADVERBS.

al kissah 'in short.'
al battah 'certainly.'
fi-l-hāl or fi-l-faur 'instantly.'
bi-l-fi'l 'in fact,' 'at present.'

ittifākan 'by chance.' (See

116. AGGREGATE NUMBERS.

gandā 'aggregate of 4.'

gāhī 'aggregate of 5.'

koṛī 'a score.'

chālīsā 'aggregate of 40.'

saikrā 'a hundred.'

hazār 'a thousand.'

kaṛoṛ 'one hundred lākhs,' or

'ten millions.'

- a. Aggregate numbers add on for the nominative plural when they are used to express indefinitely large numbers: thus, karoron khilkat 'tens of millions of creations,' hazāron ghulām 'thousands of slaves,' lākhon rūpai 'hundred of thousands of rupees,' saikron shahr 'hundreds of cities.' The same rule applies to nouns expressing time; as, barson 'years' (for baras).
- b. On may be added to all numerals to make them more emphatic: thus, bārahon la"l jaise sune 'the very twelve rubies that had been heard about.'

Nouns following numerals do not require the plural termination on. When on is added, it must be understood to impart a more definite sense; thus āth din ke ba"d 'after eight days,' do mahīne men 'in two months,' but do mahīnon men 'in the two months.'

117. FRACTIONAL NUMBERS.

ł	pāo or chauthā-ī.	Ι	derh.
į	tihā-ī.	13	paune (quarter less) do
Ì	ādhā.	2 1	aṛhāī.
3	paun or paunā.	3 ½	sārhe (with a half) tīn.
1	sawā (with a quarter).

118. They are thus used with the other numbers: thus-

75 paune (quarter less) sau.	1250 sawā hazār.
125 sawā (with a quarter) sau.	1500 derh hazār .
150 derh sau.	1750 paune do hazār.
175 paune do sau.	2250 sawā do hazār.
250 arhāī sau.	2500 arhāī hazār.

DERIVATION OF WORDS.

119. Affixes to nouns denoting agency, possession or relationship of some kind.

The usual affix for nouns of agency is wālā added to the inflected form of the infinitive (see under Verbs). Instead of wālā, hārā is sometimes used, and both these affixes may be added to substantives as well as to infinitives: thus from lakar 'wood,' lakar-hārā 'a wood-cutter;' Dillī wālā 'an inhabitant of Dillī; bastī-wālā 'a villager;' nāw-wālā 'a boatman;' gadhe-wālā 'the owner of the ass' (inflected form of gadhā 'an ass').

bān (Sanskrit vān 'possessed of'); as from dar 'a door,' dar-bān 'a door-keeper.:' similarly, sag-bān 'a dogkeeper;' sār-bān 'a canjel-driver;' guzar-bān 'a ferry-

- man; gāṛī-bān 'a coachman; mez-bān 'an entertainer' (lit. 'a table-keeper').
- bardār 'a bearer;' as from sontā or "aṣā (inflected) 'a club;' sonte-bardār 'a mace-bearer.'
- chī; as from tambūr 'a drum,' tambūr-chī 'a drummer.'
- dār 'a keeper,' 'a master,' 'a possessor;' as from zamīn 'land,' zamīn-dār 'a land-holder;' from "amal 'jurisdiction,' "amal-dār ' one who has jurisdiction,' 'a collector of revenue.'
- gar (Sanskrit kar) 'a maker,' 'a doer,' 'a worker;' as from zar 'gold,' zar-gar 'a worker in gold;' so sitamgar 'a doer of tyranny,' 'a tyrant.'
- guzār 'a passer,' 'a performer;' as from hakk 'justice,' hakk-guzār 'a doer of justice.'
- gār 'a doer' (same as last); as from khidmat 'service,' khidmat-gār 'a servant,' 'an attendant;' from gunāh 'fault,' gunāh-gār 'a sinner.'
- gīr 'a taker;' as from jahān 'the world,' jahān-gīr 'world-taker,' 'world-subduer.'
- wān (same as bān above); as from dar 'a door,' darwān 'a door-keeper;' from dhan 'wealth,' dhan-wān 'wealthy.'
- ī; as from sipāh 'an army,' sipāh-ī 'a soldier.'

120. Affixes denoting place, locality, &c.

- ābād 'an inhabited place;' as from shāh-jahān 'the emperor of that name,' shāh-jahān-ābād 'the city of Shāh-jahān, or Dillī.'
- pur or pūr 'a city;' as from Hastinā, Hastinā-pur 'the ancient name of Dillī.'
- dān 'receptacle,' 'stand;' as from kalam 'a pen,' kalamdān 'a pen-holder;' so sham "dān 'a candlestick.'
- zār 'place,' 'multitude;' as from gul 'a rose,' gul-zār 'a garden of roses;' so lālah-zār 'a bed of tulips.'

sāl (Sanskrit śālā) 'a house;' as from ghur 'a horse,' ghur-sāl 'a stable.'

stān or istān (Sanskrit sthān) 'place;' as from Hindū 'a Hindū,' Hindū-stān 'India;' so from bo 'fragrance,' bostān 'a garden;' from gul 'a rose,' gul-istān 'a rosegarden;' from koh 'a mountain,' koh-istān 'a mountainous country.'

gāh 'place;' as from ārām 'rest,' āram-gāh 'resting-place;' so guzar-gāh 'a ferry thoroughfare;' "ibādat-gāh 'place of worship;' charā-gāh 'pasture-land;' ķiblah-gāh 'place turned to in prayer.' This affix also expresses time; as saḥar-gāh 'the time of dawn.'

wāṛī or wāṛ or bāṛī 'place,' 'enclosure;' as from phul 'a flower,' phulwāṛī or phul-wārī 'a flower-garden;' so satī-wāṛ 'the place where a satī is burnt.'

121. Affixes forming abstract nouns.

i or gī: the most common method of forming abstract substantives is by adding ī to an adjective; thus from khūb 'good,' khūbī 'goodness;' from dānā 'wise,' dānā-ī 'wisdom;' from shād 'pleased,' shādī 'pleasure.' If the primitive word ends in the weak h (s), the h is rejected, and gī is added instead of ī: thus from tāzah 'fresh,' tāzagī 'freshness.'

pan or panā; as from larkā 'a child,' larkā-pan 'child-hood;' so also banyā-pan 'the business of a merchant;' būrhā-pan 'old age.'

hat; as from karwā 'bitter,' karwā-hat 'bitterness.'

Observe—Arabic abstract nonns are formed by the addition of at or $\bar{\imath}yat$; as from hukm 'an order,' hukūmat 'sovereignty;' from insān 'mankind,' insān- $\bar{\imath}yat$ 'humanity.' Many abstract nouns end in ish; as āzmā-ish 'trial,' from āzmā-nā 'to try.' These are generally Persian words. Some abstracts are formed by repeating a word, with alter-

122. Affixes forming diminutives.

iyā; as from beţī 'a daughter,' biţiyā 'a little daughter.' chah or chī; as from shākh 'a branch,' shākh-chah 'a small branch;' from deg 'a caldron,' deg-chah or deg-chī 'a kettle.'

ak; as from mard 'a man,' mardak 'a manikin;' from tifl 'a child,' tiflak 'a little child.'

īchah; as from bāgh 'a garden,' bāghīchah 'a kitchen garden.'

Affixes forming feminine nouns from masculine.

in; as sunār-in 'a goldsmith's wife;' dhobin 'a washer-man's wife,' from dhobī 'a washerman,' rejecting ī.

ī; as Brāhman-ī 'a Brahman's wife.'

nī; as sher-nī 'a lioness;' sunār-nī 'a goldsmith's wife.' am is added to beg and khān; as begam or khānam 'a lady.'

123. Affixes forming adjectives.

i ('of or belonging to'): the most common method of forming adjectives is by adding i to substantives; thus from "arūs 'a bride," "arūs 'nuptial; from bāzār 'a market,' bāzār 'of or belonging to a market; from Hindūstān, Hindūstāni' of or belonging to Hindūstān."

Observe—Hence it appears that $\bar{\imath}$ is the most common and useful of all affixes, being used both to form substantives from adjectives and adjectives from substantives.

ā ('having'); as from bhūkh 'hunger,' bhūkhā 'hungry;' from mail 'dirt,' mailā 'dirty.'

ānah ('like,' '-ly'); as from "arūs 'a bride,' "arūsānah 'bride-like;' from shāh 'a king,' shāh-ānah 'kingly.'

I was merely "a little perden" ilā or elā; as from saj 'shape,' sajīlā 'well-shaped,' comely.'

bhar ('full'); as from shahr 'a city,' shahr-bhar 'the whole city;' so pet-bhar 'belly-full;' "umr-bhar 'all one's life;' kos-bhar 'for a kos;' bhar makdūr 'to the best of one's power.'

dār ('having,' 'possessing,' 'holding'); as from wafā 'fidelity,' wafā-dār 'faithful;' from mihmān 'a guest,' mikmān-dār 'a host.'

sār ('full of,' 'abounding in,' 'like'); as from koh 'a mountain,' koh-sār 'mountainous;' from shākh 'a branch,' shākh-sār 'full of branches;' from shāh 'a king,' shāh-sār 'like a king.'

mand ('having,' 'endued with'); as from daulat 'wealth,' daulat-mand 'wealthy.'

mān ('having,' 'possessed of'); as from shād, shād-mān 'pleased.'

war ('having'); as from nām 'a name,' nām-war 'renowned.'

124. Prefixes forming negative adjectives.

a; as a-chal 'immovable.'

an; as an-jan 'not knowing,' 'unwitting.'

be; as be-wafā 'faithless.'

: bad; as bad-sulūk 'ill-mannered.'

bi; as bi-sham 'unequal,' 'not good.'

ghair; as ghair-munāsib 'unfit.'

kam; as kam-himmat 'spiritless.'

lā; as lā-chār 'helpless.'

nā; as nā-ḥaķķ 'unjust.'

ni: as ni-dar or ni-dharak 'fearless;' ni-chint 'free from thought,' 'disengaged.'

nir; as nir-ās 'hopeless.'

Intermediate particles.

- ā; as lab-ā-lab or munh-ā-munh 'brimful;' shab-ā-shab 'all night,' 'night by night;' dau-ā-dau 'running express,' 'great labour;' rau-ā-rau 'travelling.'
- ba; as dar-ba-dar 'from door to door;' tāzah ba tāzah 'fresh and fresh;' nau ba nau 'new and young;' jā ba jā 'somewhere or other.'
- be; as gāh-be-gāh 'now and then;' jā-be-jā 'here and there.' kā; as khet kā khet 'the whole field;' jon kā ton 'just as it was.'
- na; as kuchh na kuchh 'something or other;' kahin na kahin 'somewhere or other.'
- o; as guft o gū 'discourse;' būd o bāsh 'residence.'

ON THE USE OF ARABIC WORDS IN HINDUSTANI.

125. Some knowledge of the method of deriving Arabic words from their roots is indispensable to a correct acquaintance with Hindustānī.

Arabic roots, which are the source of nouns and verbs, are generally triliteral *; that is to say, they consist of three consonants, each uttering a vowel: thus FRK or faraka 'he separated.'

Observe—The root is identical with the 3d sing. of the preterite tense of the primitive verb. This is generally formed by affixing the short vowel a to each consonant of the root as above; and although the middle consonant of some neuter roots takes i or u instead of a, it will be convenient in the following remarks to describe every root as consisting of three consonants, each uttering a.

From the triliteral root are drawn out thirteen different forms † of verbs; that is to say, first a primitive verb, and ^{*} Quadriliteral roots are not common, and will not therefore be considered here.

⁺ Sometimes called conjugations.

proceeding from that twelve other forms. Of these thirteen forms, the twelfth and thirteenth are of too rare occurrence to be noticed here. There remain, therefore, eleven forms; viz. a primitive, and ten other forms which are variously employed to impart a causal, neuter, passive, reciprocal, intensive or desiderative sense to the primitive.

In the 1st or primitive form of the verb the simple signification is of course contained; as, kataba 'he wrote.'

The 2d and 4th forms make transitive verbs from intransitives, and doubly transitives or causals from transitives. Verbs in the 2d form, however, are frequently mere synonyms of the first.

The 3d form usually though not necessarily indicates reciprocal or mutual acting, or action directed upon another.

The 5th is generally used to give a passive sense to the second.

The 6th is derived immediately from the third, and may sometimes give it a passive sense. It generally, however, indicates mutual action between two or more persons.

The 7th and 8th have usually a passive sense, derived from the first, and sometimes from the second. They may occasionally involve a reciprocal or reflexive signification.

The 9th and 11th forms are used with especial reference to colours; the 11th indicating intensity of colour.

The 10th form is commonly desiderative, expressing the desire or wish for the action involved in the first.

Each of these forms has a preterite, imperative, and future tense, with an active and passive participle, and various verbal nouns. The tenses are not used in Hindūstānī, but the verbal nouns and participles are plentifully employed, both as substantives, abstract nouns, nouns of agency, and adjectives. The following table will exhibit models of the most usual.

Observe—In this table the root is FRK or faraka 'he separated,' and the three consonants of the root are printed throughout in capital letters to distinguish them from the servile or extra consonants. These extra consonants are seven in number, viz. t, s, m, n, with ye, wāw, and alif [usually remembered by the Arabic word yatasamanū-ā].

Observe—In the above tables, in order not to confuse the eye, the dot under the K has been omitted. The learner, however, must bear in mind that the K of FaRaKa is the guttural $k\bar{a}f$.

126. The foregoing models are all deduced from a regular or perfect triliteral root FaRaKa; and the characteristic of a regular or perfect root is, that the three radical letters are always present in the models derived from it. Many roots, however, may have their second and third radicals the same, or may have one or more of the changeable letters Ahf, waw, ye, contained in them. These are called irregular or imperfect roots, and may be classed under five heads.

^{*} So, umarā pl. of amīr, fuķarā of faķīr, ghurabā of gharīb, &c.

radicals are the same, when a contraction may take place, the middle vowel being left out; as madda for madada 'he extended.' But the Hindūstānī forms derived from these roots are generally regular; as madd 'extension,' madīd 'long.' So also makhsūs 'peculiar,' Pass. P. 1. of khaṣṣa; mukhaffaf 'alleviated,' Pass. P. 2. of khaffa; khafīf 'light,' adj. from the same.

128. 2d, Hamzated, or those in which a changeable alif (or hamza, denoted in English by ') forms one of the radicals; as 'amara 'he commanded,' sa-'ala 'he asked,' bara-'a 'he became free or sound.' In these, wāw (ā) and ye (ī) are liable to be substituted for hamzated alif; or two alifs meeting may be contracted into long ā: thus tākīd 'injunction,' V. N. 2. of 'akada; tādīb 'correction,' V. N. 2. of 'adaba; māmūr 'ordered,' Pass. P. 1. of 'amara; mu'aṣṣir (written mūṣṣir) 'taking effect,' Act. P. 2. of 'aṣara; inshā 'writing,' 'composition,' V. N. 4. from nasha-'a; ta'ammul (written tāmmul) 'meditation,' V. N. 5. of 'amala; istirzā 'seeking to please,' V. N. 10. of raṣa'a.

or y. They are called similar because their conjugation in the preterite is similar to that of the regular triliteral root: thus wa-"a-da 'he promised,' wakafa 'he stood,' yatama 'he became orphaned.' The Hindūstānī forms derived from these roots are generally regular; as maukūf 'stopped,' Pass. P. 1. from wakafa; yatīm 'an orphan,' adj. from yatama; maisūr 'facilitated,' Pass. P.1. of yasara; muyassar 'attainable,' Pass. P.2. of yasara; wājib 'necessary,' Act. P.1. of wajaba; wāki" 'occurring,' Act. P.1. of waka"a; muwāfik 'conformable,' Act. P.3. of wafaka; muwāsalat 'conjunction,' V. N. 3. of wasala.

130. 4th, Concave, or those in which the second radical is w or y. In these the letters w and y, preceded by and expressing their dissimilar vowel a, blend with that vowel into ā; and in the Act. Part., the w bearing i, becomes hamza: thus kāla for kawala 'he said,' sāra for sayara 'he travelled.' Hindūstānī forms are, kā'il 'a sayer,' Act. P. 1. of kawala; kā-'im 'standing,' Act. P. 1. of kawama; mushtāk 'desirous,' Pass. P. 8. of shawaka; muşawwir 'a painter,' Act. P. 2. of şawara; iḥtiyāj 'necessity,' V. N. 8. of hawaja; ihhtiyār 'choice,' V. N. 8. of khayara; mukhtār 'absolutely powerful,' Pass. P. 8. of khayara.

131. 5th, Defective, or those of which the last radical is w or y. Some of the peculiar changes which they undergo may be gathered from the following examples of forms used in Hindūstānī: rāzī 'contented,' Act. P. 1. of razawa; "ādī 'wicked,' 'transgressing,' Act. P. 1. of "adawa; "ārī 'naked,' Act. P. of "araya; "āsī 'criminal,' Act. P. 1. of "asaya; "āfiyat 'safety,' from "afawa; "ālī 'high,' Act. P. of "alawa; ghāzī 'a hero,' Act. P. of ghazawa; mulākāt 'meeting,' V. N. 3. of lakaya; tamāshā 'spectacle,' V. N. 6. of mashaya.

Besides the above five classes of irregular roots there are others, which are defective and hamzated, and concave and hamzated at the same time; but the nouns derived from these are rarely used in Hindūstānī.

133. Hence it appears that in Arabic every root is the parent-stock of a numerous family of vocables, throughout all of which the original radical idea, though variously modified, may be traced. The learner, therefore, in studying a composite language overburdened with words, may much assist his memory by accustoming himself to arrange together in groups all the words which may be regarded as members of the same family. The following three examples will serve to illustrate the aid he may receive from this method of connecting the root with its branches. The student is to exercise himself by referring each word to its model under FaRaKa. He will observe that few roots have more than five or six forms commonly used in Hindustānī. (Observe — The dots are omitted from T and H.)

- Root TaLaBa:—TaLaB 'asking,' 'seeking;' $T\bar{a}LiB$ 'an asker;' $maTL\bar{u}B$ 'required,' 'asked;' maTLaB 'object;' $muT\bar{a}LaBah$ or $muT\bar{a}LaBat$ 'inquiring for.'
- Root HaKaMa: -HuKM 'order' (Plur. $aHK\bar{a}M$); $H\bar{a}KiM$ 'a governor' (Plur. $HuKk\bar{a}M$); $maHK\bar{u}M$ 'one under orders,' 'a subject;' taHaKkuM 'ordering,' 'authority;' mustaHKiM or mustaHKaM 'made firm,' 'established;' $istiHK\bar{a}M$ 'confirmation,' 'firmness;' muHKaM 'strengthened,' 'firm;' maHKaMa 'a court of justice,' 'a place of justice.'
- Root HaMaDa:—HaMD 'praise;' taHMīD 'praising God;' HaMīD 'laudable;' muHaMmaD 'praised;' maHMūD 'praised.'
